David Jozua Joubert was born in Perdekop in the district of Standerton in 1929. He was educated at the Benoni Primary School and the Standerton High School

At the University of South Africa he obtained the Bachelor of Arts degree in 1980, which included the study of Xhosa under the late Professor Z S Qangule. The University of Fort Hare awarded him his Honours Degree in 1982 and in 1984 his Master's Degree, the latter with distinction. This study dealt with a conceptual framework for a confederal system, based on equality for the participants and was designed for South Africa. He introduced the concept of Confederal Radio to serve the proposed confederation and to solve communication and frequency problems in Southern Africa.

He has served as part-time lecturer in Political Science at the University's Division of External Studies at Zwelitsha.

In his doctoral thesis Mr Joubert proposes three possible options for solving the political problems in the R S A. His first option is based on the so-called consociational democratic model of Lijphart in which all four main groups in the R S A will share power and decision-making.

The second option is that of a confederal system in which the existing independent national states, Transkei, Bophutatswana, Venda and Ciskei, be upgraded to become full-fledged partners in a close-knit federal-type regional system of multi-lateral co-operation.

The last option is that of an adapted federal-type system based on a regional approach where the independent national states, the self-governing National States, Provincial Regional Units, as well as big black cities, will be included and represented at the first and second tiers of government.

Mr Joubert came to the conclusion that none of the abovementioned models can alone be applied in the R S A and that a combination of all three would be a viable proposition.

He is married to Betsie van Gend and they have four children.
